Message from Our Foundation President

In early 2019 your Cape Canaveral Lighthouse Foundation (CCLF) Board was eagerly awaiting the completion of the first cottage, and at the same time concerned about making it a museum since none of the Board had ever before planned a museum. So, we sought someone who had expertise in that field, and hired Becky Zingarelli to oversee the planning for a museum. One of the first things that was done was to form a Museum Working Team to develop and collect the materials that would be in the museum and how the information would be presented.

Besides Becky, the Museum Working Team consisted of Barbara Moser, Cheryl Bennett, Nancy Garwood, Liz Gravuer, Roger McCormick, Ginny Blaetz, Nancy Watts, Chris Ecker and myself. (If I have overlooked anyone, I apologize. I am currently on vacation, so do not have access to my old notes). The Museum group met weekly from about April to December when it seemed like an impossible task with so much to plan and so little time, but with Becky leading us and keeping us on track, it took shape.

The reason I am writing about the museum is because it has given me a new appreciation for the process; what is involved in the planning and execution. I have also learned that whenever I visit the museum, I don't try to take it all in at one time. When I visit our museum, I pick a poster or two and read all the information and learn new facts.

For example, why do we say: "without the lighthouse, would we have the Space Center in Brevard County?" In 1946 a committee selected Cape Canaveral as the location which met most of their criteria: good weather, a location where frequent explosions would not be a danger to the local population, and would also provide the best opportunity for the rockets to make it into orbit. Why did Cape Canaveral meet most of the criteria? Read the poster the next time you are in the museum.

Would you like to have been a lighthouse keeper? After reading the poster "Duties of a 19th Century Lighthouse Keeper" you may change your mind. Today during a hurricane, a lot of people leave the area, seeking a safer place to ride out the storm. However, the light had to stay lit 24 hours a day during hurricanes, so that meant that the keeper had to stay and ride out the storm. On your next visit to the museum, read this poster, and see if you still want to be a keeper.

Having visited all the lighthouse museums in Florida, I think ours is the best with the most information, and this is due to the planning which went into the museum. A big "Thank you" to Becky and the Museum Team for a job well done!

Thanks for your help in keeping our light shining into the future.

Ron

We're entering our favorite time of the year at the lighthouse. I hope you'll be able to come out to see the holidays with us.

Did You Know?

We only have a few artifacts that we can directly tie to a lighthouse keeper at Cape Canaveral. In the display case in the first room in the museum is a shadow box containing the spectacles and a pair of nautical earrings. The glasses belonged to Henry Wilson and the earrings to his wife, Frances Burnham Wilson. They were handed down to their great grandson, George Henry Franklin, who framed them.

Henry Wilson had been part of the Army detachment sent to protect Cape Canaveral in late 1853, during the Seminole Wars. He later left the Army and returned to become an Assistant Keeper on March 12, 1855 and married Keeper Mills Burnham's oldest daughter, Frances, the following year. After serving in the Confederate Army during the Civil War, Henry returned to Cape Canaveral, working as an Assistant Keeper until 1868 then at a variety of other positions. He became Cape Canaveral's first Postmaster in 1883, serving until his death in 1917. Henry and Frances had 8 children (6 girls and 2 boys). The younger boy, Frank, served as 2nd Assistant Keeper from 1894 to 1902. Frances died in 1924.

Holiday Decorations at the Lighthouse

Each year we refresh and add to our holiday decorations. In 2021, the giant wreath we had placed on the top of the lighthouse was damaged and unusable, so we had to do without a wreath in 2022. This year, we will once again have a beautiful new wreath. Since it's too large to take up the stairs, we have called on our friends at the Aids to Navigation Team at the Ponce Inlet Coast Guard Station for assistance. They are the unit responsible for maintaining our beacon and love to help us decorate the lighthouse. They establish a rope and pulley system from the top and raise the wreath from the outside. They're looking forward to resuming their duties this year after taking a year off. Come out to the lighthouse to see all the new decorations this year!

US Space Force T-Minus 10-Miler Run

In the midst of our December holiday activities the Space Force is holding their 2nd Annual T-Minus 10-Miler race on Saturday December 9th, in celebration of the birthday of the Space Force. This is a true 10-mile race that winds through the Cape Canaveral Space Force Station, as well as some areas of Kennedy Space Center. The finish line is at the lighthouse. It's always amazing to see so many runners, who within minutes of running 10 miles, are drawn to climb the lighthouse to the 3rd floor because it's so interesting. If you want to make some room to enjoy your holiday treats without gaining weight, come out and enjoy the run. <https://runspaceforce.com/10-miler/>

Group Tours

As of September, the Lighthouse complex has been toured by 14,381 visitors this year representing an increase of 8,000 plus visitors over last year for the same period. Group Tours for ten or more visitors allow us to expand our reach into the community. We are also seeing an increase in education tours for Brevard schools

Launch Viewing for Badged Personnel

The Space Force provides the opportunity for badged personnel including our badged volunteers to receive special tickets through Eventbrite to view launches on Station at select Launch Viewing Sites, including the lighthouse. Although these are not open to the public, volunteers are allowed to bring a few friends or family members with them. The Lighthouse is not an available Launch Viewing Site for all launches, but we still have enjoyed an uptick in visitors, especially when the SpaceX boosters return to the landing zone close to the lighthouse. And clearly, the interest is high and enthusiasm contagious as witnessed by the participants and their photos from the recent SpaceX launch and booster return on October 13, 2023.

If you are a badged volunteer, don't forget you can always find the latest information on these Eventbrite opportunities on the Volunteers Only page at

Keeping the Light Shining - Membership Musings

The Cape Canaveral Lighthouse Foundation (CCLF) currently has 581 members, which includes 2 new members and 39 renewals, two of whom became Lifetime Members. Thank you to all our members, with special thanks to Jerry & Darlene Hunt, our newest Lifetime members!

The last few months have been “slow” for adding new members, but our established members are renewing at a steady pace. This is important because we rely on our members’ support for all that we do. I hate to sound like I’m beating a dead horse, but where would the CCLF be without a strong, growing membership? The cottage museum is a direct, tangible result of a strong membership and active Board that worked hard to see the project start to finish...from a dream to reality. Your annual dues became part of the “building fund” as the Board sought additional funding through grants and appropriations from the County and State. Once again your Board is repeating these steps, seeking funding for the last two cottages. Dreams do become reality; the museum is proof of that. Now to finish the job.

Fall is here! After all the heat and humidity we have had over the summer, the weather has taken a turn and it really feels like fall; perfect weather for our annual member/volunteer picnic at the lighthouse. By now those who were able to register have enjoyed spending time renewing friendships and making new friends at the lighthouse. This is the special event from your Board to you, CCLF members and volunteers, to say “thank you” for your support over the year(s) with lunch and leisure, and maybe even a game of corn hole. Hopefully you were able to take advantage of it and enjoy the peace which surrounds our lighthouse.

After the 2022 picnic, held in the sweltering summer heat, your membership committee changed the date to October this year, a much more comfortable time for outdoor activities. Let us know your feelings on this. Is there anything you would like done differently? Just let us know and we’ll see what can be done.

And what a beautiful day it was at the Lighthouse! Thanks to all the volunteers, docents, Keeper’s Closet volunteers—thanks to all who made this a special day of appreciation and recognition for the dedicated individuals and couples who give so much of their time and talent to keep our lighthouse and museum such a welcoming and informative historic icon of the Space Coast!

Your 2nd Vice President of the Foundation Todd McDowell presided over the festivities, and made special recognition and gratitude to Jody Youmans for his beautiful background music. Then after thanking everyone, Todd made special and new levels of recognition - recognizing volunteers in three categories: those who have given over 100 hours of their time this past year which included: John Thomas Concilus, Rebecca Rodriguez Concilus, Bob Cook, Alan Fleming, Steve Goldsmith, Liz Gravuer, Beth Greenberg, Dwight Greenberg, Tom Lindstrand, Matt McCaskill, Merritt Nord, Pete Van Etten, Vicki Williams and John Winkopp. Next he recognized those who have contributed over 200 hours this year which included: Ginny Blaetz, Jim Jarnac, and Dennis Meehl. Lastly, he recognized a final pair who had contributed just under 1000 hours - Karen and Ken Arbunkle! Wow! What a wonderful way to picnic at the lighthouse!

Volunteer Spotlight on Kate Chase

An excellent combination for someone on the Cape Canaveral Lighthouse Foundation's Education committee is to love helping children and to love lighthouses.

Kate Chase, the Foundation's co-chair of the Education committee, certainly brings those attributes to the table.

"I like working with kids and I love the lighthouse," said Chase, who once worked at a charter school helping to educate young children.

Having grown up and attended high school and college in Charleston, South Carolina, Chase is familiar with the old Morris Island Lighthouse and other lighthouses in the Carolinas and Florida. She visited several lighthouses while in middle school.

While it has not been easy to get school children out to the Cape Canaveral Lighthouse since the pandemic because of transportation issues, it is work she likes to do.

"It's kind of a challenge getting the kids out there," she said.

Her husband, Ian Chase's military career with the Air Force brought them from Tampa, their previous station, to make their home in Brevard County about three years ago.

Ian Chase is friends with members of the Cape Canaveral Lighthouse Foundation. They were out for lunch with some of those friends when someone suggested she should help with the Education committee.

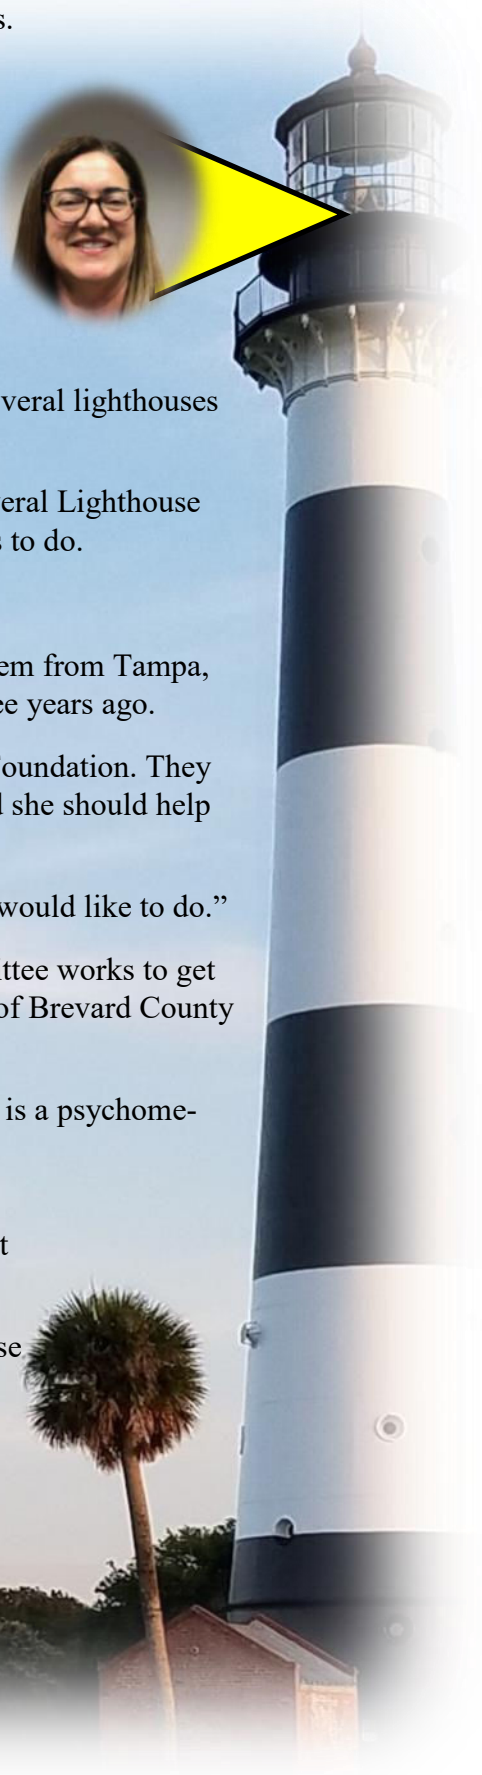

"I was kind of excited about it," she said. "It sounded like something I would like to do."

Soon, she was named co-chair of the Education committee. The committee works to get school children to learn about the lighthouse, and its ties to the history of Brevard County and the space program.

In addition to her duties as co-chair of the Education committee, Chase is a psychometrist, a specialized field of psychology that administers psychological and personality tests.

She is also trained as a docent but does not get the opportunity to go out to the lighthouse as much as she wants.

Thank you Kate for all you do to support the Cape Canaveral Lighthouse Foundation, and keeping our light shining brightly.
